A bridge between history and future

ERFURT & SOHN KG was established as a paper mill in 1827 by Friedrich Erfurt. In 1864, Hugo Erfurt, the founder's grandson, developed a product known as "woodchip" that was to embark on a triumphal march around the world in the twentieth century.

Initially, the material was used as a decorative paper for display windows and as a base paper for collotype wallpapers. In the 1920s, its advantages were discovered for the four walls of the home. Painted in individual colours, unique effects could be created in a room. Woodchip thus opened up completely new opportunities for creating a very personal ambiente.

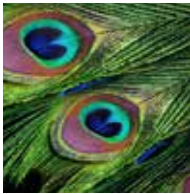

Since then, Erfurt & Sohn has established itself worldwide as the expert in woodchip, design-based, paintable and functional wall coverings. A whole tranche of further innovative new product developments followed suite: embossed paper wallpapers, nonwoven wallpapers, creative wallpapers, external wall coverings and energy-saving systems for the interior.

The driver behind this innovative spirit is ERFURT's constant quest for the best quality and for sustainable, resource-conserving products and systems. For this reason, all wall coverings continue to be made in the original production plant in Wuppertal.

Sustainability at ERFURT & SOHN

The issue of sustainability has always been topical in our family-owned company, founded 190 years ago and located directly adjacent to a bird and landscape conservation area. The founding fathers of ERFURT & SOHN simply called it taking responsibility for nature, the region and its people. The combination of environmentally-aware and efficient actions and the careful and conscious handling of water, wood, energy and air, the key resources for the manufacture of paper, have always been and still are a matter of course for ERFURT.

ERFURT's entire production process is governed by an ecological approach: We have minimised the production of refuse and waste materials, we avoid the generation of emissions and waste water, which can harm the environment, and we have reduced our energy consumption to an absolute minimum. ERFURT & SOHN has always selected its raw materials in terms of their sustainability. Therefore, we use primarily renewable raw materials, especially recycled paper, as well as cellulose and woodchips from sustainable forests. All of our products can be re-painted several times and therefore have a longer service-life than other wallcoverings.
